Thank you for your submission of the team group component of AS1.

What was done well:

The report presents a clear business question and maintains a good link between market segmentation and price prediction throughout the analysis.

The methodology is structured and applies both regression and clustering techniques appropriately. The decision to exclude price from clustering demonstrates an understanding of avoiding circular analysis.

The exploratory analysis highlights the importance of room type and location and uses visualisations to support the findings.

Multiple regression models were compared, and the evaluation metrics were presented clearly. The discussion acknowledges the limitations of predictive performance.

The recommendations are linked to the results and recognise the need for additional variables to improve prediction accuracy.

What could be improved:

The business rationale could have been developed further. The report explains what was analysed but provides limited discussion of why the findings are strategically important for Airbnb.

The regression results show that the best model explained only a small proportion of price variation ($R^2 = 0.146$). More critical discussion should have been provided regarding the implications of this low predictive performance.

The clustering analysis identifies nine segments, but the discussion remains largely descriptive. You could have explained more clearly how these segments differ from a business perspective and how Airbnb could use them in practice.

Some visualisations are presented with limited interpretation. The report would benefit from more explanation of the key insights gained from the figures.

Only one reference is included despite several methodological and analytical decisions being discussed. The academic support for the analysis is therefore limited.

A significant portion of the report focuses on technical outputs and appendices, while the discussion of business impact and critical evaluation is relatively brief.

General comments for future work:

This report demonstrates a reasonable understanding of regression and clustering techniques and applies them appropriately to the Airbnb dataset.

For future work, you should place greater emphasis on explaining the business value of the findings rather than focusing mainly on model outputs and performance metrics.

You need to provide deeper critical evaluation of model results, particularly when predictive performance is limited. Explaining what the results mean is often more important than reporting the numbers.

You could strengthen the report by providing more academic support, developing the interpretation of the clusters, and offering more detailed business recommendations based on the findings.

Overall, the work shows a structured analytical approach, but stronger critical discussion, business interpretation, and justification of conclusions are needed to achieve a higher mark.
